BRIEF NEWS OF OREGON

Senator Chamberlain intends introducing a bill appropriating $40,000 to move the Coos Bay life saving station and rebuild it in a better location.

The farmers of Douglas county have formed an association to grow broccoli and winter cauliflower for shipment to Minneapolis in carload lots.

The Booth-Kelly Lumber company has just received a patent to over 70,000 acres of timber land in the Oregon & California railroad grant.

County clerks from at least 20 of the counties of Oregon are expected to meet in Portland September 15 in convention.

Joseph Steinhart, of New York, has secured through the Hood River Apple Growers' association 200 carloads of the finest fruit to be grown in the valley.

At Salem Judge Galloway has dismissed the suit brought in the circuit court by Ernest Ringo to enjoin Secretary of State Olcott from referring the workmen's compensation act to a vote of the people.

Two hundred cars of pears, principally Bartletts, have been shipped from Medford already, and none of the late pears have gone forward. The bulk of the crop was sold at good prices before shipment.

The Medford W. C. T. U. has adopted resolutions condemning the X-ray skirt and urging all members of the organization to uphold public authorities in preventing its appearance on public thoroughfares.

The Baker commercial club is making every effort to have the architects of the new federal building in Portland consider the use of Baker county building stone in at least part of the structure.

The banner section of timber land in Clatsop county, according to the new county cruise, is section 4 of township 4 north, range 6 west, which contains 88,850,000 feet of merchantable timber, the great bulk of which is yellow fir.

The state printing board of Oregon has decided by an unanimous vote to purchase the printing plant of the late state printer, W. S. Duniway, for $15,470. It was also decided to adopt the Salem scale of wages for the printers in the state printing office.

That there may be no chances of such disasters as befell the passengers on the New Haven road the other day on the new Portland, Eugene & Eastern, all the cars to be used on this line are to be of steel, even the baggage cars.

From various sections of Polk county come reports of unusual shortage in the potato crop. The acreage is small this season and so is the yield in many cases. Early potatoes made a fair showing, but late varieties do not present a good appearance in the field.

Benjamin R. Perkins, who was lately appointed as district superintendent for the Prohibition party, has announced a 30-day campaign at Eugene to enlist the women voters of that city in the party's cause. He said that similar campaigns are to be made all over the state.

It has become known at Eugene that a University of Oregon man won the prize for highest standing offered by Oxford, England, university, and that he is the first American to win this honor. He is Cecil Lyons, of Eugene, who was graduated from the University of Oregon in 1910.

An experiment garden and farm for instructing Coos county ranchers in intensive farming is proposed by the Marshfield chamber of commerce. The plan is to establish an experiment station of 10 acres on which various vegetables and flowers will be grown. This will demonstrate the best varieties and furnish considerable of the seed for the ranches around there.

Attorney General Crawford has filed suit in the circuit court at Salem against the governor, secretary of state and treasurer of Oregon to recover to the state the sum of $16,518.83. The action is said to be based upon a purely technical interpretation of the law governing the penitentiary "revolving fund."

The local land office at Vale has been doing a rushing business in homestead and desert filings, 120,000 acres of government reserve land in Malheur county having been thrown open to entry in August. It is expected that 1000 families will be added to the population of Malheur county.

With 10 blocks of hard-surface pavement constructed and the necessity of installing a street-cleaning department at once and of soon changing the entire sewerage outlet system of the city, and with the city's finances at a low ebb on account of the numerous improvements of the year, the Dallas city council faces a critical situation.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Churchill is confident that the displays of the school children at the state fair this year will surpass those of previous years. There will be county and district exhibits and many individual displays. Any child exhibiting in either the county or district classes is eligible for industrial fair prizes.
